1. WE have not forgotten that Song of our childhood, The same that we sung 'neath the chestnut tree's shade The same we re-echoed through valley and wild wood, When children together like children we play'd. 'Tis a Song of our School-days, dost thou not remember, How at neon-time we sat on that stone by the door, And look'd on our treasures the fruits of September, And murmur'd that Song while dividing the store:

We have not forgotten-we still sang together Long after the days of our frolics were pass'd, When our bearts knew of Life but its sunniest weather, And its flowers were so fresh that we thought they would

When we stood in the gay halls of music and dancing, When we met once again on a far foreign shore-Thy mind bent on pleasure, and mine on romancing-We remember'd that Youth-Song, and sang it once more

We have not forgotten-O, still that Song lingers On Memory's dial-plate, livingly clear— Though Time has wiped out, with his clumsy old fingers,

Full many a trace of the things we held dear!
But that Song of our childhood—we both have grown older And years long and changeful, have pass'd since we met But our heart, belov'd friend! O our hearts must be colder Before it can teach us that Song to forget! October, 1842;

BETTER TIMES .- We have had the means of knowing something of the general distress and gloom which has pervaded the ranks of the mechanics and manufacturers, for it is among them that our circulation extends; and in watching their condition and prospects we have had occasion to observe how great has been the depression under which they have struggled during the past season. It is reasonable to believe that there were at one time over two hundred thousand persons out of employment in the manufactories of New-York and New-England alone, and many of those who were fortunate enough to be retained in business, have found their pay inadequate to their comfortable maintenance.

It is in vain to deny that business has rapidly increased within the past month, whatever may have been the cause of it. A better feeling prevails, and the laboring classes are more generally at work, at reasonable wages, who were generally ununemployed and suffering in want a few weeks since. Nor is this state of things confined to the laborer, for the merchant and capitalist partake equally of the general gladness and confidence. Neither is this feeling limited in its effects, but prevails throughout the country. We have gathered from the public journals a few facts to show the progress of improvement. They afford a better and far more satisfactory evidence to the honest working man than all the speculations of party politics.

An agent of the Port Henry Irom Company, whose works are in Essex county, says that orders have been sent up to put the whole establishment in full blast. They had recently 1000 tons of iron in the city of New York, which is finding a ready sale at $27 per ton.

At the Mattawan factory 400 hands, it is stated. have been set to work; and the establishment of Mr. Tech, at Haverstraw, which employs over 200 persons, is about to go into operation.

A gentleman from New Jersey states that more than 40 mills which had bean closed in that State, are to be speedily opened.

The extensive cotton factories at Morristown Pa, which had been idle for some months, were started again a couple of weeks since; and it is said that 500 persons who were recently unemployed are now busily engaged in the factories in Delaware county.

The Portland Advertiser says that orders have just been received by journeymen shoemakers in that vicinity, who were thrown out of employ by the reduction of duties in the late tariff, to return to Massachusetts, where they had formerly been employed, to engage in their former business.

A better state of things, says the Baltimore American, has succeeded to the previous depression in almost every department of business. It upon which operations may be conducted with assurance as to results. The general feeling in the community is more cheerful and lively than it has appeared to be any time within the last few years. And a correspondent of the United States Gazette, writing from the same place, says :- Business seems to be on the revive-confidence is again taking the place of suspicion and distress. Our merchants are up and doing. The wharves begin to present a lively appearance. The Philadelphia Gazette says that several factories in that csty, which have long been closed, will immediately commence operations. Among them the Globe Mills, Lenning's Chemical Works and Dr. Bergen's Glass Works. We learn also that the Lehigh Company has been applied to for water power to be applied to some new iron works.

A manufacturer in Waterbury, Conn., reports that he has received more orders for goods in his line since the passage of the tariff bill than he had received during the whole of four months In the iron region of New Jersey, the ore which has been on the banks of the canal as quiet as stones and almost of as little value, has been contracted for.

The Saugerties iron works, which, previous to its suspension some months since, gave employment to a large number of hands, and payed out over three thousand dollars monthly, are prepared to resume operations.

Whatever parties may say with respect to the cause of this state of things, it is with facts alone .hat we have to do, and the fact that a better state of things does exist is of more consequence to the artisan than the speculations of theorists. State Mechanic.

STOVES.

STOVES.—HOWE'S Patent Stove, for heating Parlors, Halls, &c., and there probably is not a Stove for sale in this city that contains fin so small a compass) all the advantages this Stove does, for neatness of appearance, economy in fuel, and for emitting a softand pleasant heat, it is not surpassed by any, and equalled by very few, if any; and while I am about it I should like to call the attention of the public to those Stoves for sale in this market that are only got up to look at, and not for service and utility; there is considerable croaking about hollow bases or bearths, to warm or dry the feet upon. I would merely ask the question, would a hearth or base made of sheet iron stand much putting feet upon it for that purpose? I think not, therefore I would caution the public to buy such Stoves only as have been well tested and tried. This Stove has a cast iron hearth and two doors in front, one for putting in coal and the other to show the fire, thereby giving a very cheerful appearance, and at the same time brings an open fire convenient for warming or drying the feet. It may be seen at the Fair next week; and is for sale at the Manutactory, No. 239 Water-street, and also at 23 and 125 Bowery, and at Powell & Vining's, Brooklyn.

STOVES.-J. THOMPSON'S PREminm Russia Steet Iron Parlor, Store, Hall, Office, and Nursery Stoves, have now been in use nine years, and are so well known, that but little need be said about them. are so well known, that but little need be said about them. The American Institute has awarded me two premiums for the best and cheapest stoves in the market. Their great advantage over others is, that they have an ash pipe which carries off the light ashes, (so troublesome in other stoves and so injurious to furniture and merchandise.) These stoves are sold with the privilege of trying them two weeks, and returning them without charge, if they do not prove satilactory. Although they are the cheapest of any in the market now, the prices are just reduced from 10 to 15 per cent.
